TO MY FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS

In presenting my annual catalog and cultural guide, I wish to thank my many friends and customers for their liberal patronage and kind recommendations, and I assure you I will try my best to merit your continued confidence and good will.

Last year I did not issue a catalog because I had lost the largest part of my Dahlia stocks by the unusually early freeze the previous fall. However, I managed to save enough tubers from the spoils to propagate from. And last season I grew an exceptionally fine crop of bulbs, which have kept in excellent condition. And I am sure I will have ample stock of most varieties to supply all demands.

Yours very truly,

N. A. MILLER.

Please Read Before Sending Your Order

Order Early. As orders are received, stock will be reserved and sent out at the proper time—about the 15th of April or sooner if requested.

Terms. Cash with order. Send P. O. or Express Money Order, Registered Letter or Bank Draft. Stamps accepted on small orders.

Prepaid. All orders are sent with charges prepaid.

Guarantee. All dahlia tubers sent out to be true to name and in good growing condition. If any should prove otherwise please notify me and I will gladly replace the stock or refund your money.

Substitution. I never substitute unless asked to do so. But would suggest naming a few varieties as second choice, in case I should be sold out of the varieties ordered.

Name and Address. Write your name and address plainly and address all orders and correspondence to

CACTUS DAHLIAS

THE Cactus type will always be very popular because of its distinct and unique formation of petals, which gives the flowers a chrysanthemum-like appearance. Most varieties have long, narrow and gracefully incurved petals, while some are straight. The Hybrid Cactus have large, bold flowers with broad, fluted petals.

GLADIOLI

THERE is scarcely another summer flower more beautiful and easily grown than the Gladioli: together with their exquisite coloring and long, graceful spikes, make them a most valuable flower for cutting or garden decoration.

Gladioli make a wonderful display when planted in large beds on the lawn, and charming effects can be had when planted in the border or in front of roses or shrubbery, especially when some suitable subject is grown among them, like trailing alyssum, candy-tuft or dwarf nasturtiums, to hide the bare surface of the ground.

An abundance of these handsome flowers can be had all summer and until frost by planting at intervals of every two weeks from the middle of April up until the latter part of June.

Plant in an open, sunny situation, three to five inches deep, depending on the size of the bulbs, in well cultivated soil that has been liberally enriched with some kind of fertilizer. Dry blood and bonemeal mixed in equal parts, is an excellent fertilizer for Gladioli.

No further attention is required after planting, except to keep the beds clear of weeds and give support to some of the heavier spikes when in bloom. Water freely the whole season, even after the plants are through blooming. This will develop the bulbs and make them stronger for next year's growth.

Late in the fall, after the tops begin to wither, and before hard frosts, dig the bulbs, cut off the tops, and store in a cool, dry, frost-proof place.

Cut Flowers. Cut the spikes when the first flower buds open and put in water. Every morning remove the wilted blossoms, cut off about one inch of the stems and replace in fresh water. Treated in this way they keep fine for a week or ten days, especially if kept in a cool place at night.

This year I have an exceptionally fine stock of young, healthy Gladioli bulbs to offer, grown the first and second year from bulblets. These bulbs are round, full, and plump. The kind that is full of pep, easy to grow, and sure to give the very best results in the flower garden.

NOTE.—WILL SELL MEDIUM SIZE GLADIOLI BULBS AT HALF OF CATALOGUE PRICE. THESE SMALLER BULBS WILL GIVE EQUALLY AS LARGE AND FINE FLOWERS AS THE LARGER SIZE IF GIVEN GOOD CULTIVATION AND PLENTY OF WATER IN THE EARLY PART OF THEIR GROWTH.

QUALITY FIRST AND ALWAYS

THESE bulbs were raised from young, healthy, vigorous stock, which has never been allowed to bloom, and developed by intensive cultivation, over a long growing season, on fertile upland, without irrigation or commercial fertilizer, and dug about the middle of November, after the stalks were ripened by frost, and then carefully cured by gentle heat, which insures bulbs of the very best quality for either forcing or outside culture.

DAHLIAS AND THEIR CULTURE

DAHLIAS are of such easy culture and so exquisitely beautiful that everyone should grow them, and they are rapidly becoming one of our most popular flowers.

There is no flowering plant which at so little cost will produce such abundance of large and beautiful flowers as the Dahlia, and in the different varieties you will find almost every shade, tint and color imaginable.

Dahlias make a beautiful hedge, planted along a walk or drive, and a most gorgeous and effective display when massed in large beds on the lawn or herbaceous border,

Preparation of Soil. Dahlias will grow and produce fine blooms in almost any kind of soil. But grow and do their best in a rather light sandy loam that has been well worked by spading to a depth of 10 or 12 inches and thoroughly pulverized.

Planting. Dahlias may be planted any time after danger of frost is over, but for the best results plant from May 1st to the first of June. Late plantings always produce the largest and finest flowers.

Plant, if possible, in an open, sunny situation. Dig holes six inches deep, then lay in the tuber on a slight angle, or almost flat position, with the eye or sprout uppermost; cover about 2 inches, and pour in some water to settle the soil about the tuber; then cover again about 2 inches, leaving the rest of the soil to be filled in later, when the plants have come up above the ground.

Cultivation. Cultivate deep and thoroughly with a hoe or garden hook about once a week until the first flower buds appear, then deep tillage should cease and only the surface of the soil lightly stirred, as deep cultivation at this time is fatal to the small feeding roots and the free production of flowers.

Watering. Good cultivation is more important than water in the early stage of a dahlia plant's growth. But in dry weather water is quite necessary to keep up a strong and continuous growth of the plants, especially when dahlias are planted near trees or on the lawn and near walks with a grass border.

When the plants start to show flower buds that is when water should be applied freely in large quantities about once or twice a week. This will force a greater quantity of flowers with long stems and the largest sized blooms. A good method is to make a trench or basin-shaped mound of earth around the plant three or four inches deep and about two feet in diameter, filling this with water and pulling the earth back to the plant after the water has soaked into the ground.

Fertilizer. Dahlias don't require very rich soil to produce fine flowers. But to get extra good exhibition blooms a liberal amount of well rotted manure or commercial fertilizer should be applied and thoroughly worked in the soil about a month or six weeks after planting. A light top dressing of air-slacked lime is also recommended.

Disbudding. When extra fine cut flowers or exhibition blooms are wanted it is always best to disbud the small side buds and pinch out the first set of side shoots and leave only one bloom to develop on a stem.

Disbudding will not be necessary where the plants are grown for garden decoration, as a large number of good sized flowers are of more value for a fine garden display than only a few highly developed blooms. Always keep the old, withered flowers picked off and your plants will bloom better.

Staking. Dahlias, when well grown, usually make such large, heavy plants that a support of some kind becomes quite necessary to keep the strong fall winds and heavy rains from breaking down the plants and sometimes ruining them entirely.

A strong stake driven firmly into the ground at each plant and the stalk of the plant loosely tied to it will prevent a disaster of this kind.

Digging, and Care of the Tubers in Winter. Late in the fall, after the frost has killed the foliage, the clumps should be carefully dug and left to dry in the sun for a few hours; then cut off the stalks about two inches above the tubers and store in a frost-proof cellar or basement, away from furnace heat, if heated by a furnace. The clumps should be packed in boxes with the stem end down and covered with moss, sawdust or dry sand to prevent them from shriveling up.

Dividing. In the spring when the tubers commence to sprout the clumps should be divided with a sharp knife to single tubers, with one strong eye or sprout to each tuber.

In writing this article on Dahlia Culture I have endeavored to explain how I grow my large and beautiful Dahlias, and I am sure that anyone who will read and follow these cultural directions will have equally as great a success as I have had in growing these wonderful flowers.

Sincerely yours,

N. A. MILLER
